AUTISM VOICE INSTITUTE

3 centers recovery for children and adults

Every year, over 200 children and young people are assessed free of charge.

480 children and young people are enrolled in our programs

87% of children are integrated into kindergartens and schools

Over 9,000 parents are supported in recovering their children

89% of our children receive free therapy and support

200 schools and kindergartens involved in the integration of children with autism

Over 5,000 teachers can now support neurodivergent children and young people

WHAT WE DO

Recovery therapy for children and adults	The recovery process for each child with disorders involves between 2 and 6 hours of individual therapy, carried out daily, for several years. In our centers, children and young people benefit from assessment programs, ABA therapy, speech therapy, socialization groups, school integration, autonomy programs, etc.
Education and social integration	We help children and young people develop skills and attend kindergarten, school, or high school. We train teachers to understand how to help and accept them. For adults, we aim to promote their social and professional integration and develop new services in Romania.
Support programs for parents of children with disorders	Parents play an important role in their children's recovery process. Through counseling and training programs, we help them understand what autism spectrum disorders are, what their children's needs are, and how to work with them.
Specialized training and education programs	Autism Voice training programs include: - specialized training for therapists in Romania - training in applied behavioral analysis accredited by the College of Psychologists - training for teachers

Advocacy and social awareness campaigns	Over the past five years, our organization, together with our partners, has succeeded in introducing the occupation of behavioral analyst into the COR in order to professionalize the field. More than 100 NGOs in the field have managed to grow organizationally and push autism policy onto the public agenda through extensive awareness campaigns.
Research and development resources	The research directions we have set ourselves will provide us with data on the statistics and current situation of people with autism in Romania, the effectiveness of treatments, the effects of specialized interventions and mental health programs, as well as the external and social mechanisms that can facilitate the integration of people with autism.
Recovery and inclusion programs for adults	Adolescents and young adults with autism and other disorders need to develop autonomy, independence, social integration, and labor market inclusion. That is why, in 2022, we established the Autism Voice Institute, focused on revolutionary programs so that any young person with psycho-behavioral health issues can be socially active.
Actions for social change	Actions for education and social change include: - LIVE broadcasts on social media with Autism Voice specialists - The podcast "Me and My Child" and the show "Typical and Atypical Dialogue" on Itsy Bitsy FM. - Workshops, conferences, and other specialized events

WHERE WE WILL END UP

Standardization and capacity building for mental health NGOs in Romania

Creating an inclusive public health system and providing free treatment for mental health issues in children and adults

Providing best practices and scaling our recovery centers and programs into local and regional models for national access

Social change and change in attitudes towards the acceptance and integration of neurodiversity in Romanian society

Integration and inclusion of neurodivergent children and adults in the country into society, school, and the labor market.
